Dear All,

Medical advancement is mind boggling, yet highly commercialised, attracting patients from all over the world. Never before have we seen such plethora of advertisements – luring the patients to undergo treatments, under their expertise, for ailments alien to most of us.

We are often left wondering what in the right course to be taken; medicine, surgery or other medical recourse. We end up with multiple opinions, which confuse even educated ones.

When my daughter S. Shreenidhi had a mighty fall during long jump and was diagnosed as a case for surgery to repair her torn ligaments around the knee, we were in a quandary; whether surgery is a must, if yes, the timing, since my daughter was in class XII. During the inevitable process of consulting many experts and loaded with multiple options and choices, we happened to meet Dr. Vijayaraj.

The first consultation itself was highly comforting; with a patient explanation of the nature and seriousness of the injury and the need for a surgery, he instilled confidence in us and this was a different experience as till then we were only told in very few words what we should go for surgery and not why we should, so much so that, we got a feeling that we are pushed into a course of treatment, may be, unwarranted.

Then and there, we took a decision to follow the course advised by Dr. Vijayaraj. Needless to say that he gave the best treatment during surgery and also post operative care that my daughter not only over came her physical incapacitation, but also excelled in her studies (incidentally, Dr gave very good friendly tips to my daughter). We were extremely happy to share my daughter's results with him.

Subsequently, I referred a couple of our friends and they also came back to me that "in the present trend of medical care business, Dr. Vijayaraj is different. Money is not the only motive for the course of treatment suggested by him."

WE ALL WISH Dr. VIJAYARAJ BEST OF HEALTH, AND PROSPERITY

Thanks & regards
